PARTNERSHIP FOR NEW YORK CITY ANNOUNCES 2005-2006
CLASS OF DAVID ROCKEFELLER FELLOWS

NEW YORK, October 17, 2005 – The Partnership for New York City today announced the names of 18 senior executives who have been selected to be David Rockefeller Fellows, Class of 2006. They will participate in a year-long program that is designed to prepare rising executives to become informed about and involved in New York City affairs, following the civic leadership model of the Partnership’s founder, David Rockefeller.

Since the David Rockefeller Fellows Program was established in 1989, 150 executives have completed a rigorous year of meetings with New York’s top corporate, non-profit and government leaders as well as site visits to key public institutions.

The Fellows explore major issues facing the City and learn how they and their companies can be effective corporate citizens in partnership with the public and non-profit sectors.

“This year’s impressive class demonstrates the diversity, talent and civic commitment of the New York City business community,” said Kathryn Wylde, President & CEO of the Partnership. “We think of the Fellows as part of the next generation of leadership in the City and we are delighted at the quality of people who have committed to give up significant time from their day jobs to learn how to be more effective civic leaders.”

The Partnership for New York City (www.pfnyc.org) is a network of business leaders dedicated to enhancing the economy of the five boroughs of New York City and maintaining the city’s position as the center of world commerce, finance and innovation.
